ACT FOR A HUNDRED CLIENTS

Petitions and Arguments Heard in Favor of a Speedy Disposition of the Matter Affecting the First Section Planned by Commissioners-Owners Anxious to Ger an Appropriation.

More than one hundred of the individual property owners festing within the boundaries of the first section of street exten-sions, as laid out by the District Commissioners under the highway act, were represented before Chier Justice Biogham in equity court No 1 today upon an appeal for greater expedition in the matter.

There were put as many attorneys as cli-ents, but the great number who followed Mr. Chapin Brown in the presentation of the cases suggested the propriety of call-ing the roll of the bar, lest some should first section, irregular sections that do not conform to the plan of streets as laid out in the city, and the claim is that after having proceeded so far under the act as to have the plan recorded, the Commissioners are seeking to delay the matter in order to correct by remedial legislation some known defects in the law.

BASIS OF THE ATTACKS. Some of the attorneys attacked the con stitutionality of the act; others adverted to such defects, but declined to press, and the general conclusion seemed to be that as Justice McComas, in proceedings before him, had passed upon the Constitutional points, affirming the validity of the act-there would be no serious objection upon that score, but the demand of all the at-that score, but the defining of all the attorneys representing the protesting clientage was for immediate action in the matter of authorizing the marshal's jury as provided for, and the inastening of proceedings, in order that the coming Congress may have the opportunity to provide the money for the damages awarded.

Mr. Chapin Brown, who represents about fifty petitioners in Inglesiae subdivision, made a brief statement of the case so far as it has progressed, citing particularly that these cases shall take precedence in court over all other cases, and made a demand in behalf of the owners for immediate action. He forted the contention of the unconstitutionality of the law, in order to preserve any rights that may be involved thereunder, and stated his grounds of objection.

to preserve any rights that may be involved thereinder, and stated his grounds of objection.

Mr. W. L. Cole, who represents twenty-two clients in Dennison & Leighton's subdivision, presented a sample petition, which he said he meant as much as an argument as a petition, and represented the issues he would raise. He did not desire to attack the law upon constitutional grounds, although the eleventh section of the fact he believed to be repugnant to that instrument. The petition read was that of Mrs. Mary R. Langtree, owner of lot 58, in the subdivision, located in the line of 8ixteenth street extension. Mrs. Langtree states that her property will be caltrely absorbed by the extension, and she is now neither able to sell the property she owns nor purchase elsewhere, the proceeds of sale being necessary to the acquisition of another home.

"The Commissioners, she alleges, have by reason of the unsettled condition of the street extension in any declined to

All those refreshited by Mr. Cole, he stated, are similarly situated.
"I do not know what the Commissioners may have in view," said Mr. Cole. "It may be they will in their wisdom ask for an amendment to the Constitution, in order that they may be enabled to more successfully absorb to public use the propert the citizens." He fisked for immediate clients, and under section 18 of the act arged that proceedings may be speeded.

Mr. J. H. Lichliter represented property owners on Sixteenth street, Gordon & Gordon represented a number, Mr. John Kloont also a number, the latter stating that he would undertable to show that section 12 of the act is repugnant to the Cousti-tution; Mr. D. Baker's subdivision and Whitney Close; Mr. B. F. Leighton's aid he had no desire to "add to this cherus," but he added a word for several interests in his charge, and objected to the present clouding of title. Mr. Nathaniel Wilson was interested as ar. Nathamel Wilson was directed as counsel in nearly all of the subdivisions, and would attack the validity of the law.

The Commissioners, he said, had violated the provisions in ignoring and interfering with valid and legal subdivisions, and there were others also whose interests were

n the keeping of counsel present. CHIEF JUSTICE'S SUGGESTION. The chief justice suggested, in a brief resume of the case as presented, that these proceedings might more properly come before the justice who had sat when the initial proceedings were had, but thought the might go so far as to authorize the marshar's jury, and permit the after-pro-ceedings to be arranged for when necessary. The Commissioners were represented by Messrs. Thomas, Duvall and Werthington, and each had something to say. The con-tention of counsel was that the board cannot know certainly at this stage whether or not all the petitioners are in, and that o proceed now to a determination is in

Mr. Brown finally stated that he would willing upon the assurance of the other side of an intention to hurry the case, to have additional notices served and would If necessary, consent to the delay of thirty days, and it was ultimately agreed that the case should go over until Saturday, to enable counsel to agree upon the form of notice to issue.

rack today as a witness in the Olmstead will case, now being tried before Justice-Bradley in circuit court No. 1.

Mr. Olmstead's testimony was chiefly drawn out by cross-examination, and the substance of it was that the relations substance of it was that the relations between him and Mrs. Olmstead, the maker of the will, were in all respects pleasant. He did not depart from the line of evidence heretofore given, reiterating what has been heretofore said and denying that he had ever sought to influence his wife's favor in his behalf.

Mrs. Downs, Ella Nash, who was Mrs. Olmstead's maid, and Howard S. Nieman, progretary of the Chery Chas, Land Corp.

consistent's maid, and noward s. Steman, excretary of the Chevy Chase Land Company, were also in the witness box.

The latter's testimony was to the effect that be was a member of a musical club with which Mrs. Olmstead was also conected, and often escorted her in her fam lly carriage to and from the meetings of the society. Being thus intimate with the fam-ily, he was frequently in the company of both, and never noticed the slightest evi-dence of unhappiness upon the part of Mrs.

MAINS UNDERTHETRACKS

The Commissioners Decide That They Must Be Removed.

ALL BUT CROSS CONNECTIONS

Be Required to Do This at Their Own Expense-Too Much Interfer ence With the Water Supply-Other District Matters.

The Street Railroad Companies Will

The Commissioners this morning made an order regarding the relations of the city water system and any system of un-derground traction that may be introduced here by a street railway company. It is directed that all water mains, excepting cross connection and valves, shall be removed from under or between the tracks of such system. All changes in the location of water mains made necessary by the rule shall, in the option of the railway company, be made by moving did mains or laying new. When a new main is laid the entire expense is to be charged to the company. This includes cost of all abor, material, new pipe, and replacement of improved pavements.

If the District elects to law a second.

main at the time an old main is moved or replaced by a new main, in order to accommodate the construction of such railways, the entire expense, including cost of re-placement of improved pavements, shall be borne by the Water Department.

When it is necessary to move old mains for the accommodation of the railway the entire expense, including remaking exist-ing service, hydrant and cross connections including cost of labor, material and re Placement of improved streets, is to be borne by the railway company, no matter whether the connections are remade to new mains or to old mains in new locations.

This order carries out the rule applied to sewers built for the use of the underground electric systems. The recent experience of the Ninth street line, where travel was seriously interfered with by the accumulation of water in the conduit, taught a lesson which is being used in laying the P street line. At several points the sewer system is not sufficient to relieve the sudden gathering from rainfall, caused by the change in the street in making the road.

BEARING THE BURDEN.

BEARING THE BURDEN. It is therefore necessary to make new sewers in some cases; in others to enlarge existing fines. The cost in such instance is assessed to the railway company. The inconvenience of having the streets torn up is home by the people. It is solely to give sewer accommodation to the Metro-politan electric line that a sewer is being laid from the Capitol grounds to D street on the cast side of Delaware northeast. on the cast side of Delaware northeast.

Great progress is being made under the act passed by Congress last winter, making the cost of cleaning sidewalks by the District authorities a lien upon abutting property. The law is clear and unquestioned, and there has been little doubt that it would cause mow to be kept off the side walks alongside vacant lots this winter as never before. Property owners have calculated on this.

What some of them, especially nen-

What some of them, especially non-residents, have not thought of, is that very much unlawful litter collects on the walks made unlawful litter collects on the walks and has been collecting there for years. They have five days' agite, but this is often overlooked. There has never before been any law by which the District could recover with certainty the cost of cleaning, and many places have become turfgrown, covered with weeds and accasionally filled with roots of trees that have burrowed their way through the bricks. The street-cleaning department is clearing these away, and will have a pretty large bill in the aggregate to collect for this work.

A CURIOUS COMMUNICATION. A CURIOUS COMMUNICATION

Commissioner Ross, as president of the board, has answered a letter from E. A. Keeling, at the Sherman Bank, No. 874
Broadway, N. Y., asking for co-operation in extending the foreign commerce of the people of the United States. Mr. Keeling signs himself as temporary secretary, but rails to state of what organization. He points out that it costs a great deal for business firms to secure acquaintance with individual in foreign countries and to secure their confidence so as to enter into trade relations. This expense is so large, he says, that individuals and firms bedtate to undertake it. He considers the policy of our government short-sighted in not making some public provision to in-sure easy opening of business relations sure casy opening of business relations abroad for any house, but is hopeless that Congress will ever do anything. He suggests the wisdom of combined effort of merchants to provide for this opening of business relations, not in the interest of one trade, but of all. He assures the Commissioners he asks nor ever will ask money. He only wants sympathy.

Col. Ross says any movement to extend our foreign commerce has the sympathy of the board, as of all other bodies of intelligent public men, but the Commissioners.

telligent public men, but the Commis-sioners are busy. They cannot actively co-operate. He says nothing at all about money.

It is a serious lack in Mr. Keeling's communication that he does not say who are his New York associates, and where and when the temporary organization was One Result of the Pool. Chicago, Nov. 21.-It is now almost certainty that as a result of the adoption of the new trunk lines presidents agree-ment the Central Traffic Association will on January 1 become a thing of the past. This association, which cost the reads about $100,000 a year, will be merged into the new joint traffic association. About seventy-five members of the New York Press Club have engaged a special car to convey them to Atlanta, via the Seaboard Air Line, to attend the Man-
